

Investigator Resources

The Samueli Institute occasionally calls for applications in a well-defined area of research that is relevant to its mission to explore the science of healing. The Institute uses a rigorous process to review all applications, including preliminary evaluation of a concept proposal and expert review of a full research application.

Potential investigators are encouraged to monitor this web site for the posting of Requests for Applications or Program Announcements. The Institute does not seek and will not consider investigator-initiated research proposals.